

I am certainly an advocate of competition in the area of broadband availability for all who wish to subscribe to it. However, evidence I have seen indicates that Broadband Over Power Line would have devastating consequences for wide portions of the heavily used high frequency RF spectrum. In my view, such blatant disregard for this extremely valuable resource would be intolerable. It would appear that BPL is not ready for wide distribution in its present form. I would ask that the commission take very seriously its responsibility for protecting the public's interest with regard to preserving the usefulness of the radio frequency spectrum.

Sincerely,

Robert F. Connelly
